

Bulwer-Lytton Contest Entry Form

Edward Bulwer-Lytton was best known for his immortal opening line, “It was a dark and stormy night.”

Do you know that was only part of the quote? It was really much worse than that! Try your hand at ultraviolet prose, as you attempt to come up with the worst possible opening line for a science fiction or fantasy novel ever! Enter as many times as you want. It’s harder than you think.

Completed entry forms must be returned to the registration desk no later than 10:00 PM Saturday.